Minden reeve questions value of community policing

by Susan Grober

A request at Thursday's Minden council meeting to build a $22,000 community policing office on Main Street led to an argument over the merits of having an officer walking the beat in town.

Community Policing Committee members Jerry Jordan and Doug Campbell informed council they've been searching for an existing building, but found rents too high, from $400 to $1,000 a month.

The fire hall was suggested, but Campbell said it's too remote from town.

Instead, Campbell and Jordan would like to see a 440 square foot office built on Main Street property behind the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

"The location is absolutely excellent, because you've got both sides covered," said Jordan.

A contractor said the building should cost $50 per square foot, or a total of $22,000.

"That's for one that the town could be pleased to have," said Campbell. "I don't want to put up something cheap, but not something gold-plated, either. I want to put up something presentable that we can be proud of — a credit to the town."

Campbell said the costs could be reduced if members of the community are asked to pitch-in with some of the work.

The men asked council for permission to have blueprints drawn-up for the building.

Campbell said the $22,000 figure covers costs of building, insulating, wiring, heating, and hooking up to township sewer and water. "Then the thing is ready for commission."

"I appreciate the groundwork you've done," said Reeve Bern Berry. "I guess you're suggesting all the $22,000 come out of township funds, not from the community."

Berry noted that Glamorgan rejected the offer of community policing in the township.

Jordan said most municipalities want a police officer on the streets, and for good reason. The week of the meeting, alarms at Becker's and his store, Highland Jewelers, went off at night, and someone broke into Northland Sales.

"We definitely need it in this area," said Jordan. "And it's not just Minden. Minden's no different from any other municipality. We need this desperately."

Berry said Glamorgan turned the offer down because the number of police officers won't increase, yet one officer would be tied down in each municipality.

"When a call comes out from one of the outlying areas, that man (community police officer) can't come out because he'd not mobile," said Berry.

Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher said that argument makes the prospects of having a community police officer in the village even more attractive.

"If they are cutting back on services, and I feel they are, to have a police officer here guarantees us at least one man in the area for at least eight hours a day," said Maher. "Haliburton has the right idea to have one. Glamorgan was very generous in saying no."

Campbell said community policing is cost-effective. "We may be looking at $22,000 as opposed to $75,000, which pays for a police officer's salary, training, car, and everything else.

"It's a pretty good deal for the community, I think," he said. "It teaches cops how to recognize problems before they become problems, as opposed to the aloof 'point the finger' attitude which may not always work."

Jordan expressed frustration over opposition to community policing.

"Finally we've got the police interested in the local people and in the prevention of crime (rather than investigating problems after the fact)," he said. "Finally, we've got the policeman's ear... We should be co-operating."

"I never realized I was such a bad guy," said Maher, a retired police officer. (Berry is also retired from the police force.)

Maher said things will get worse with more local court cases being tried in Lindsay, forcing police officers to travel there at least every other Wednesday.

"If you want to fill the court room here, let the police make the arrests," said Jordan.

Council agreed to pass a resolution authorizing the committee members to have plans for the building drawn-up.

"I don't see any reason why they shouldn't," said Councillor Verne Graham.

Two hats already in ring

With the municipal election more than five months away, two candidates have already announced their intentions to seek a seat on Minden council.

In a press release circulated by the Coalition of Anson, Hindon and Minden Ratepayers' Association (CAHMRA), it was announced that Jean Anthon, a resident on Mountain Lake, and Grant Plooard of Horseshoe Lake have agreed to be nominated for a council seat.

The two candidates have the backing of the ratepayers' association. It is noted in the release that other candidates could be endorsed for the seats on the Board of Education.

Anthon is perhaps best-known in the community for her four-year term as the first woman president of the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations, an organization whose in-

The bite that kills

by Susan Grober

To humans, the recent crop of mosquitoes are an annoying nuisance.

But a sharp increase in cases of canine heartworm disease means mosquitoes could be a deadly menace for Fido, Rover, or Spot.

In 1989, there were only six cases of the potentially fatal disease reported in Peterborough. Last year, the figure rose to 24 — a 400 per cent increase.

Canine heartworm disease is spread by mosquitoes. When a mosquito bites an infected dog, it can carry the infection to other healthy dogs. One pet may become the source of infection for many dogs.

Dr. Peter Bennett of the Minden Animal Clinic says the increase is cause for alarm, even though the number of reported cases seems low.

"Heartworm is still uncommon, but we want it to stay that way. So prevention is the way to go."

Dogs should be checked for heartworm before going on medication to prevent the disease. Then, prevention is as simple as giving your dog a pill once a month during mosquito season, and a few months afterward.

"It's a thing that is easy to prevent, but difficult, expensive and dangerous to treat," says Dr. Bennett.

Canine heartworm disease is caused by parasitic worms that live in the dog's heart, resulting in impaired blood flow and damage to the heart, lungs and liver.

Treatment to kill the adult heartworm is complicated. An arsenic derivative is administered to the animal by intravenous once a day for three days.

"The treatment could end up killing the dog," says Dr. Bennett.

After a dog is infected, the worms circulate for five or six months before settling in the heart. If a dog is infected in June, the preventative medication would be required at least until September to be effective.

Open up and say woof

Canine heartworm disease can be easily diagnosed through a blood test during your pet's yearly visit to the vet. Here, Dr. Peter Bennett examines Shaman, a bullterrier/husky mix, and gives her a clean bill of health.

The last case of heartworm Dr. Bennett treated was in 1983 (the dog survived). There was one case of heartworm in Haliburton just last year.

The population of wild canines, such as coyotes, in Haliburton County could cause problems in the future, "because there are lots of those around," says Dr. Bennett. "They could infect the local dogs forever if they get heartworm."

Most of Dr. Bennett's canine patients receive medication to prevent heartworm disease. But he expresses concern about those dog owners who feel it's not important to treat their pets because the disease is not prevalent in the area.

"If you keep saying that every year, and don't do anything about it, then you're in trouble."

Youths will improve ski trails

by Susan Grober

Warm weather is here, summer is quickly approaching, and it's time for young people to hit the cross-country ski trails of the Haliburton Highlands.

But not to ski. Young people are needed for a 10-week Environmental Youth Corps program to widen and straighten some of the cross-country trails in the county.

Project co-ordinator Paul Jackson is hiring up to eight people for the job, which begins June 10.

"The purpose is to hire people aged 18 to 24, and give them work experience in the outdoors that is related to preserving and protecting the environment," he says.

The project is a joint effort between the Haliburton Highlands Nordic Trail Association and the Ministry of the Environment, which is providing funding.

Three areas in the county will see improvements. At the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre in Dorset, 21 kilometres of ski trails will be widened. And a kiosk will be built in conjunction with a local contractor.

At Haliburton's Glebe Park, six kilometres of trail will be widened for a cross-country skating loop. Jackson says the trails must be 14 to 17 feet wide for this new sport, which is similar to speed-skating in that participants skate in a herringbone pattern, rather than a straight line.

"It's really fun, and really fast," he says.

Also, select areas of the entire trail system in Haliburton and Minden will be widened. The 15 kilometres of trail were chosen because they have the most traffic, says Jackson.

Anyone who applies for the job should enjoy the outdoors. "It's for people who aren't afraid of black flies and mosquitoes," says Jackson, who would like to see local youths apply because it will be difficult to provide accommodation.

Applicants need no special skills, but must not be afraid of hard work. The group will be moving rocks, building bridges over swamp areas, and cutting down trees.

Sandvik clearing axes, machetes and other basic equipment will mainly be used, rather than more expensive power tools. However, the entire group will take part in a course at the Frost Centre on how to use a chainsaw.

Proper pruning and limbing will also be taught, and the trees to be cut down will be selected with care, says Jackson.

"We won't just be hacking away at trees. We'll replant at the end of the season to counter-balance. And for those we cut down, the wood will be used for bridges, firewood, or wood chips to put back on the trail to insulate, fill potholes and help prevent erosion.

Co-ordinator Paul Jackson

"We'll use everything, much like the way the Native American Indians would, with respect to nature."

Jackson's diverse job background certainly seems to make him the right candidate for the co-ordinator position.

He has cross-country skied throughout Canada and Europe over the past 15 years, has worked in the bush as a geological engineer, and in 1982 started his own company to prospect for gold for three years.

At present, he works on the PineStone Inn golf course as greenskeeper, and is now getting involved in a recycling program at the inn.

Jackson says the local cross-country ski trails are the least developed he's seen, and have the most potential for improvement.

Colour-coded, nationally known symbols will be added to the trails to act as distance markers and to prevent skiers from getting lost. Also, the ski association hopes to come up with a new map for the system.

If this summer's project is successful, the association will apply for more funding next season, says Jackson.

"We hope that htis will be an ongoing thing — hopefully these peope will be able to come back next summer."

To apply for the program, send a general resume and cover letter to:

Haliburton Highlands
Nordic Trails Association
Box 670
Haliburton, Ontario

There is no deadline for resumes. Jackson has already hired two people from outside the county for the program, but would like to hire at least four or five more. For more information, contact him at 457-1640.

Minden Kinsmen motor sports park would be a boon to area

by Susan Grober

A motor sports park proposed near the Scotch Line landfill site would be "a major tourism generator in our community," says the president of the Minden Kinsmen Club.

Minden council gave the club's proposal support in principle at its April 11 meeting. At last Thursday night's meeting, Reeve Bern Berry requested comments from the ministries of environment and natural resources.

Councillor Verne Graham expressed concern because the site is located on the buffer zone between the landfill and Beaver Creek.

In a May 6 letter to council, Kinsmen Club President Jim Carrell states that he realizes the Ministry of the Environment requires eight hectares be set aside and dedicated as a landfill site.

"Our plans require that the remainder of the lot be rezoned to permit a motor-sport park, and we would like to have this process set in motion," wrote Carrell.

"We will be pleased to contact the authorities having jurisdiction and do whatever legwork may be necessary to satisfy their requirements."

The proposed site has been toured by experts in the field of motor racing who provided input, wrote Carrell. On April 20, councillors Bob Sisson and Mike Maher joined Kinsmen Club members to view the site with CAS Canadian Automobile Association President Jack Higgins, race track designer and British Automobile Racing Association member Bill Lobban, and Ian Law from the SOLO Racing Association.

"It was their unanimous opinion that it was an excellent location for a motor-sport park," wrote Carrell.

At present, the property is zoned for waste disposal. The property would have to be rezoned and severed to allow the park, Roads Superintendent Clayton Cameron learned after contacting the environment ministry.

If there are any problems with leachate as a result of the park, the municipality would be responsible, said Cameron.

"I think this is something that will have to be done in stages," said Deputy-Reeve Maher.

Two local men were honoured at last week's Minden council meeting for their significant contributions to recreation in the community. Here Toni Carr presents Ontario Municipal Recreation Association (OMRA) awards to Lyle McKnight, centre, and Lloyd Harrison.

Council acts on excavations

Owners of the three scars on Main Street in Minden will have to clean up their acts, or pay the consequences.

At last Thursday night's council meeting, Councillor Verne Graham expressed concern over the three excavated sites in the village, and suggested the municipality enforce its bylaw on the prompt filling of excavations.

"If they don't plant something like a hedge, then we should charge them," said Graham.

Reeve Bern Berry said the municipality should approach the property owners, "and suggest to them they clean it up. Failing the proper response, we contact our lawyer concerning the legalities of the matter."

Gull Lake road signs okayed

by Susan Grober

The Gull Lake Cottagers' Association has been granted permission to erect fingerboard signs at forks in the road, to make better use of the group's emergency service road signs.

At its last meeting, Lutterworth Township Council also heeded the cottagers' association's request to have Roads Superintendent Kevin Hill come out and check the signs to ensure they don't interfere with snowplowing or other roads work.

Council members commended the initiative, but Councillor Maurice Boyd expressed concern that the number system isn't all it's cracked up to be.

Boyd said he drove down a road where only four of 15 residences had signs. "How is anybody going to find their road in an emergency?" he asked.

Hill said the signs are a good idea, especially since Lutterworth purchases fire protection from other townships, such as Laxton, Digby and Longford.

The signs would allow people to give the number of their home in a tense emergency situation. "It's great because when people are rattled, they don't know what they're saying," said Hill.

Ratepayers are provided with yellow stickers which list the emergency phone numbers. "Then the first thing they do (in an emergency situation) is dial zero," said Hill. "That gets them a Lindsay operator, and they're in trouble."

Boyd said some of the numbers on residences don't make sense, and suggested the numbering system could be improved.

"I'd like to see the cottagers' associations get their acts together, because that really gets me," he said.

A broken beaver dam is being blamed for a washout on the Sir Sams Road last week at Eagle Lake. The torrent of water washed away the road, isolating a number of residents. The twisted debris carried by the rushing water marks where the road used to be. The Dysart road crew was able to establish a single lane over the washout to provide access for the property owners.

Election policies being developed fluence has increased a great deal during her years in office.

FOCA represents the interests of lakefront property owner groups across the province.

Anthon has also served as president of the Mountain Lake association, where she and her family have owned property for the past 31 years.

Anthon has also been closely involved with the Canadian Coalition on Acid Rain, a group which attempted to influence government policy regarding the problem.

Although the coalition is disbanded, she remains a member of a committee which will monitor ongoing developments by governments as they attempt to clean up the acid rain menace.

She and her husband have recently taken-up permanent residence on the lake. Because she likes to be active, and it was an election year, Anthon thought it would be an excellent opportunity to become involved.

Anthon noted she was not quite ready to offer specific policies or a platform as yet, but is willing to work hard for the improvement of the community.

Plooard is a member of the Horseshoe Lake Property Owners' Association, and describes himself as semi-retired. He formerly held a management position with a printing business in Toronto.

Admitting that it is somewhat early to have a detailed platform, he said he was prompted to run by a desire to see the local council that can work together for the betterment of the municipal council and the county.

Noting this is his first attempt at elected office, he said he is willing to "listen and learn".

The association has announced it will be releasing a policy statement regarding the group's stand on a number of issues.

The policies are currently being developed under the slogan "The Best of Both Worlds", a phrase Vern Gilbert of CAHMRA noted stresses the co-operation between all taxpayers and residents of all varieties. He said the emphasis will be on: "...off-lake economic growth and on-lake environmental preservation and restoration."

The new group has attracted support from a number of lakefront property associations in the municipality. According to Gilbert, there are 11 possible organizations who may wish to become involved in CAMHRA. He noted as well that contact has been made with the citizens' group being formed around opposition to recent tax increases at the county level.

CAHMRA will be meeting on June 1, at which time a policy statement should be hammered out.

Legion refused tax break

by Susan Grober

The Minden legion won't get a 10-year break on paying property taxes on its Highway 35 building.

The request was first made of Minden council in March by legion Vice-President Dave McAdam, who said a section of the Municipal Act allows municipalities to exempt from taxation any premises used and occupied as a clubhouse by persons who served in the armed forces in any war.

McAdam and President Sally Bonner approached council last Thursday night for a response.

Councillor Verne Graham said he researched the matter and, after contacting the Ministry of Municipal Affairs in Orillia, was told that the exemption only applies if the clubhouse is used exclusively by those who served in the armed forces.

"At one time, it fitted the legion, but currently it does not because of your membership," said Graham. "One-hundred per cent are not of Her Majesty's service — you have associate members. In order to apply, you have to be pure."

Graham said the regulation is not used by any municipality in Ontario.

Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher said council doesn't have the right to impose a 10-year exemption upon future councils.

He also said such a bylaw would require approval from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs. "We can pass it, but they'll overturn it."

Reeve Bern Berry said Monmouth council agreed to write-off $500 in taxes for its legion this year. "That's okay, because that's their term of office."

Graham reminded McAdam that the legion building was recently reassessed, which means a savings in taxes of over $1,000.

Graham acknowledged that the legion donates money to the municipality through its sale of Nevada tickets, "but we hope you understand why we can't use the regulation."

McAdam was unsatisfied with the council members' response, and said his interpretation of the act could be just as valid as council's interpretation. He noted that the regulation also allows for an exemption on a memorial home.

McAdam said he would contact the ministry about the matter. "I intend to safeguard this legion," he said. "The Royal Canadian Legion memorializes those who served in the Canadian Forces... those who died for you and me."

No time for haggling

For years it has been an accepted fact that a policeman on the beat in an urban setting is more effective than one cruising the same area in a patrol car. The officer on the beat has a greater knowledge of the area, knows the citizens, who can be trusted and who can't, who to question and where to look for trouble or help.

For years members of our community have viewed with concern the distance placed between the members of the local detachment and the citizens by the fact that the officers do almost all of their work from cruisers. Those who can remember, speak warmly of the sense of comfort and security created by seeing an officer occasionally walking the street, making his presence known.

Of course, in a large rural area like Haliburton County, it is necessary for the police to have immediate and quick access to a vehicle. It should be realized, the recent proposal to introduce community policing to Minden will not create a position in which we can expect to see an officer walking the streets 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The cruiser will still be an important and vital link in the services the force provides. However, we think the linking of one officer, with one urban community, allowing the officer to approach the problems in his or her area in the most appropriate way, is a sensible and worthwhile approach. It worked well years ago....there is little reason why it shouldn't have positive results today.

With these thoughts in mind, we have to wonder why the municipality and the community have been so reticent to get this effort under way. A liason committee has been formed, the BIA and the council has been approached, and still there is haggling over who will foot the bill and even of the program's worth. If the people of Minden value the extra sense of security this approach to policing will bring to their community, then it is time to let the elected officials know how they feel. If the elected representatives have objections to this program, they should state their position clearly.

The busy summer season is already here, a time when this sort of police presence will be most effective and valuable. It would be be unfortunate to see this opportunity missed simply because an agreement could not be reached on who will pay for the infrastructure needed to support the program, if that is indeed all that stands in the way.

I wish I could persuade Doc Adams, the old GP on the TV show Gunsmoke to make a house call north of the border. I'd like him to take a look at this pasty, consumptive kid called Canada. If Doc Adams could slap his stethoscope on Canada's rib cage, I think I know what his diagnosis would be.

Depression. This country's browned off, brought down and bummed out.

As usual, it's the political situation. The people we elected to get us out of an earlier mess have created a bigger one. Normally, we would just wait for another election, sling the incompetents out on their duffs and elect someone else, but this time there's a problem.

There is nobody else.

Oh, there are other political hopefuls we could vote for. The trouble is, they look just as two-faced, unreliable and all round unworthy as the bozos already aboard the gravy train.

Makes you wonder what would happen if a Mister or Ms. Clean, a Political White Knight suddenly showed up on the steps of Parliament Hill. Would Canadians rejoice? Would there be a groundswell movement to get him or her into office? Would the country be racked by a bout of hero worship that would make Trudeaumania look like a historical hiccup?

Probably not. White Knights have a notoriously short shelf life. Jimmy Carter washed into the Oval Office on a tidal wave of good will. Alas, he was a little too Christian for the job. When the time came to 'kick butt' he turned the other cheek instead. And

Stanhope has gone to the dogs, says reader

Editor:

A comment on your Court Reporting section.

It's an amazing thing how a bunch of neighbours' barking dogs can drive a person crazy for five years and he can't do anything about it; but when the tormented neighbour records the exact sound and produces it for a day, out come the clubs and the police have no trouble coming up with a charge to stop that noise! Somehow they think it's different.

Imagine, they had to put their dogs inside for a while. Isn't that where they belong, near their master, if they bark all day and night for his pleasure? The owner can just turn up the TV set a little louder and drink a little more and then the tormented neighbour can come outside to enjoy the peaceful Haliburton County, the promoters spend so much money selling. Everyone would be happier and half the police and courts could be transferred somewhere else.

What was the charge? "Interfering with the enjoyment of property." Of course, that law is only exercised against the tormented not the tormentor!

This observation from one who knows in Doghope Township, where barking dogs have all the rights and have even muzzled the 'noise bylaw' enacted against them. The victim has the right idea—move to Peterborough or Toronto where ONE phone call stops barking dogs. The councils there care. I suppose that's why their towns grew so large and prosperous.

Bill Hamilton,
Stanhope Township.

New column requests response from the community on tax hike

A call by a number of citizens in the county for local politicians to take a closer look at how our tax dollars are being spent has resulted in an overwhelming response, according to one of the organizers, and former Minden Councillor, Gary Kenney. He, along with Haliburton resident John Beachli have agreed to follow up on their initial approach to the county, by suggesting ways the politicians could trim dollars from the current budget. In order to keep the residents informed, the group has offered to prepare weekly reports on their activities. This is the first of those supplied by Kenney and Beachli.

This column begins at the street. It is based on four assumptions we find our neighbours repeating over and over again. They are worth repeating once more.

1. A tax is the way we all share the work it takes to run this county and its townships. At one time we relied mostly on volunteer labour to repair the roads, build schools, help the farmer with a failed crop, and a dozen other things that joined neighbours together and made them a community. Today we share that work mostly by volunteering a portion of our earnings to be used on our behalf.

2. An elected official is a neighbour we all choose to direct the affairs of our community. At one time we all showed up at a meeting place when there were decisions to be made and a show of hands could make those necessary for the community's day to day life. Today we elect, appoint, and hire neighbours to make most of those decisions for us.

3. We've lost control. All of us. Somehow we neighbours who vote at elections, we neighbours who skip the elections, and we all who pay our taxes, have given up on the ideal of the community and instead have replaced it with the idea of a "system". Somehow we neighbours who are elected, appointed, and hired have become so absorbed by the "system" that we mostly have lost touch with the street.

4. It must change.

This column will be an easy one to write. It's being written by you. We are receiving hundreds of responses to the recent municipal tax hikes and we are simply funneling your concerns to our elected neighbours and digging for the details you say you want.

We want to hear from you, neighbours all. Write to us at this newspaper; talk to us on the street. Share the community responsibilities.

NDP abolition of OPP's oath to Queen is foolish

Editor:

The Rae Government's abolition of the Oath to the Queen taken by Ontario Police Officers and Commissioners has properly aroused wide public resentment. The foolishness of this move has been compounded by arrogance: Beverly Morley, the Premier's Appointment Secretary informs the League that "this isn't an issue outside Toronto", an assertion certain to be rejected around the province.

The abolition of the Oath is wrong for a variety of reasons: first, it is insulting to Her Majesty the Queen, whose service, dedication and stable influence are widely respected and admired by most Canadians. Second, by taking this step allegedly in the name of making police forces more accessible to our ethnic communities, Mr. Rae insults their loyalty to the Crown. Many immigrants and new Canadians have come to this land precisely because of the freedom and prosperity we enjoy here under our parliamentary monarchy.

In addition, the Premier has succumbed to the 'cafeteria Canadianism' of Susan Eng and those of her ilk. This is the dangerous position that suggests Canadians have the right to opt out of any part of the country which happens not to appeal to them. Such an attitude can only further contribute to the disunity of our land. Further, Rae shows gross insensitivity by adding the Monarchy—one of the few unifying forces in a divided Canada—to the already emotional debates about the Constitution.

We need to take immediate action to condemn Rae's republican initiative. Ontarians who would like background information and a petition form which they can circulate to friends and neighbours during the reversal off this wrong, insulting decision should write the Monarchist League of Canada at P.O. Box 1057, Oakville, Ont. L6J 5E9. Let's send the Premier a message he won't forget, whether we live close to or far from Toronto!

Dominion Chairman.

Bring us the Dalai Lama from the Himalayas became perhaps the most reviled U.S. President in modern history.

As a matter of fact there is a world leader wandering around at loose ends right now. He is stateless, condemned to remain semi-permanently on tour thanks to a Chinese invasion of his country back in 1950. He is the 14th Dalai Lama, the spiritual leader of Tibet. For the past 31 years the Dalai Lama has led a government-in-exile, trying to enlist world support to get his country back.

Alas, the Dalai Lama isn't much of a politician. As a Buddhist, he pursues a simple life, bereft of limousines, servile flunkies or closets full of Gucci loafers. As a man of peace, he's largely useless to international gunrunners and military establishments that like to play power politics using nation-states for dominos. Is there a powerful army in the Himalayas ready to back the Dalai Lama? No. Does Tibet sit on vast oil reserves? No.

So the Dalai Lama roams the world, trying to get help for his country. And everywhere he goes he hears the sound of government doors hissing shut in his face. In England, it was decided it would be 'not right' for the Prime Minister to see him. In Washington, George Bush, who has cut deals with Noriega and Saddam, was still declining meetings with the Buddhist priest of last month.

Needless to say in Ottawa, whence waggath the Washington tail, the Dalai Lama was likewise cut dead. Mulroney and his minions refused even to acknowledge his visit.

The Dalai Lama is undeterred by such shabbiness. He remains cheerful and committed to non-violence. How does he do it? I don't know, but here's his favourite prayer:

For as long as space endures, and for as long as living beings remain; until then may I, too, abide to dispel misery of the world.

You won't find the Dalai Lama's name on your next election ballot.

But I just may pencil it in on mine.

Verne Graham takes his oath of office at last Thursday's Minden council meeting, as fellow councillors look on. They are: Reeve Bern Berry, Acting Clerk-Treasurer Joe-Ellen Ingram, Graham, Councillor Bob Sisson, and Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher.

Roads concerns to be addressed by Dysart

Members of the Bitter and Burdock Cottagers' Association may have some of their roads concerns addressed by Dysart.

At this month's meeting, council considered a letter by association president Harvey Fleming, who enquired about topics discussed at the last annual meeting.

Council decided to forward the following suggestions to its roads committee:
1) Road grading should be done more frequently than in the past summer;
2) More dust control should be done where cottages are close to the road;
3) Hills should be blacktopped to improve traction where washouts are occurring; and
4) Culverts could possibly be purchased from the municipality to improve the drainage system of the lakes.

Fleming also asked how many more cottage lots are being allowed on Bitter Lake, because of a concern of overpopulation leading to pollution of the lake.

He included a map of the lake, which outlined the lots.

"I'd like to point out these are well in excess of the official plan," said Reeve Bill Davis.

MNR budget cuts blasted by Dysart council

by Susan Grober

Dysart council has passed a unanimous resolution objecting to Ministry of Natural Resources budget cuts to fish and wildlife programs.

The move was made in response to a letter from the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, which states the ministry's cuts include the closure of three of Ontario's 14 provincial fish culture stations.

"They also mean a decrease in enforcement and termination of other important fish and wildlife programs," the federation's executive viee-president, Rick Morgan, states in the letter.

As an example of what the federation feels are gross inequities, Morgan said the ministry takes in direct revenue of approximately $105 million per year from provincial sales tax for an angler's direct purchases for the sport, plus fisheries licence fees and other costs.

"Plus all the indirect revenue," said Morgan. "But your fisheries budget is just over $54 million. What are you doing with the profit? Why aren't you increasing the fisheries budget dramatically?"

Morgan said the programs are being "sacrificed" so funds can be redirected to the ministry's Remedial Action Plan (RAP) program.

"Yes, the clean-up of the Great Lakes is important and, yes, your government was elected based on its promised to do more for our environment," said Morgan, who compars the shifting of funds to a shell game.

"You must add dollars for environmental protection and enhancement. The public expects higher priorities, not mere budget shifts."

Although the federation believes the RAP program seeks to achieve improved environmental quality, "this should not be done at the expense of our important fish and wildlife programs," said Morgan.

A letter to the ministry was written by Morgan, and federation President Charles Alexander.

According to the federation, which has 74,000 individual members and 470 member clubs, the budget cuts will mean the following:

Stocking of coho salmon will cease — "Why?" asked Morgan. "Anglers have been complaining about Ontario not stocking enough salmon, and stocking a particular strain of coho which runs too late. The coho stocking should be replaced by an earlier running strain, or with a

National Access Awareness Week starts today

Wheelchair driver faces discrimination

The following story, entitled, 'Why I Cried Myself to Sleep Last Night,' was submitted for National Access Awareness Week, which runs from May 26 to June 1.

by Donna-Lee Sisson

So many times it seems like there's nothing we can do to improve the injustices of this world. Sometimes there's no point in trying. This time I've decided to do something, even if making you think about yourself and, more importantly, others is all that is accomplished.

Last evening, my sister and I were shopping in a large department store with someone who is very special to me. She happens to be a wheelchair driver. (You may be thinking she drives one of those handicapped vehicles — that's a bus with squeaky seats or the flat tire missing, right? If you do, then your ignorance has misled you.) 'Wheelchair driver' is a term I coined myself. It's kinder than using the expression 'confined to a wheelchair,' which basks in negative connotations. By the way, a wheelchair never confines, it brings freedom and offers independence, just the opposite of popular opinion which is so narrow-minded. Ah yes, speaking of narrowness reminds me to get back to my story...

After a prolonged visit in the ladies department, (you see, there's rarely enough room to pass between the rack in a chair, and when something catches your eye and you manange to get to it after hard labour, chances are that you'll not be able to reach high enough to check the tag or take a closer look!) we took our purchases to the check-out.

After 'standing' in line for five minutes, we were near enough to notice the steel-post railing alongside the counter, just an arm-rest width too narrow for safe passage.

With exhausted exasperation, I walked the length of the 10 tills looking for an alternative plan. Weaving my way through the crowd (something that the power chair couldn't have manoeuvred) I discovered a checkout with a large wheelchair sign hanging above it. My delight in the discovery was short-lived because it was missing an important element — a cashier, to be specific.

I spotted an important-looking gentleman whom I chased around the checkout area. When I finally caught him (fortunately I was wearing running shoes), I calmly inquired about this specially-designed checkout.

After consulting with other staff members (What was he to know about it? I think he was the manager), he told us it wasn't being used. Not only was it unstaffed, there wasn't a cash tray for it.

It became obvious that they had no intention of using this desk, but the big sign sure looked nice, and I'm sure that it had lured in many other unsuspecting shoppers, complete with their chairs, sticks, walkers, and white canes (the big sign would be sure to catch their eye). Yes, the big sign probably drew them...

The manager then ushered us to another line-up, this time at the end of the counter. The cashier was pleasant, and promised to wait on us momentarily. As we waited, other customers rammed their carts past, not caring whether they collided with the wheelchair or not.

My ever-patient companion silently cringed with each bump, and smiled through her now nagging pain. The cashier turned her attention to us, and began to ring through the items. As she did so, she politely commented to the customer waiting next that she'd be just a moment, ending with: "You don't mind, do you?"

The self-centred, able-bodied, inconsiderate person insensitively replied, "Yes, I do mind." Just then, another cashier came to help bag merchandise, positioning herself between the counter and the wheelchair, adding another hip-check to the growing number of assaults, and blocking our view of the cash register and the items being purchased.

I can't tell you what happened next, because I left the store then, unable to contain my anger, retreating to the parking lot.

My sister stayed until the end of the transaction. I assume the bagger moved in time to collect the cash — after all, this is what customer service is all about, isn't it?

At the time, I was furious. I still am. Later in the evening, as I replayed the events in my mind, I became very sad. Sad because the most courageous woman I know had been insulted and ignored, was denied dignity and equality, and was treated like a person without worth.

As I thought about it, the tears flowed freely and I realized that my broken heart was only half as tragic as her broken spirit. That is why I cried myself to sleep last night.

Please don't be the one who robs someone else of his rightful place in society. Think before you speak, hold a door, leave them their parking spaces, and smile when you pass a physically-challenged person on the street.

Together, we can make accessibility happen!

Fashion show will help hospital

It's fun, it's entertaining and it's all for a good cause.

Coming up Thursday, June 6 a fashion show will be held at the Minden Community Centre with the proceeds earmarked for the Minden Hospital fund. The show is being sponsored by Mabel's Fashion Boutique, owned by Mabel Clendenning. A number of area merchants are working with Mabel to ensure the success of this venture. Sliding into Yesterday

Carol Mowatt's performance of The Beatles' classic, 'Yesterday,' in a duet with teacher Glen Carter on piano, was one of many memorable moments last Thursday during Archie Stouffer Elementary School's talent night, put on by Grade 7 and 8 students. Other highlights include: the Grade 7 band's 'Space Age Shuffle,' Carrie Martin, Jessica Wallace, and Erin McKnight bringing Wilson Phillips to life with 'Impulsive,' Michelle Howard's singing of 'I Will Always Love You,' and dancing by Samantha Reagan, Katie Reid and Angela Howard to the song 'Fun House.'

Tools stolen in break-in Investigations are continuing into a number of break-ins in Haliburton Village recently.

This past week a quantity of tools was removed from the Emmerson Lumber property on Maple Street. The theft occurred on the night of May 22 - 23.

Among the items taken was a set of tools valued at $1500. These were privately owned and were removed from a truck parked in the yard. The tools were marked with the initials "JJ".

A break-in at an adjacent commercial premises is likely linked to the theft from Emmerson Lumber. The commercial enterprises belonging to Murray Burton was entered on the same night. Police estimate the intruder made off with $1000 worth of tools.

MNR cuts hurt fish and wildlife substantial increase in chinook, which are more cost-effective. Does Ontario want tourists to quit coming to Ontario to catch muskies and salmon? Do you want Canadians travelling out of the province to fish in the United States?";

Enforcement will be reduced — "Ontario already has too little conservation enforcement, and far too much poaching... If this reduction proceeds, those criminals who steal fish and wildlife will be sent the worst possible message... that you don't care. So will honest citizens. You should be increasing enforcement, not decreasing it";

Reduction in capital staff — "Often they are involved in the assessment of fisheries health and populations, wetland evaluations, and other important management. To reduce this important component of the management team is not appropriate, particularly since it will mean your conservation officers and other higher-priced full-time staff will nead to do much of this work";

No real budget increase — "The budgets for fish and wildlife deserve dramatic increases, not decreases. Such increases would be consistent with your elections promises of higher priority for environmental matters, and you take far more in from those enjoying fish and wildlife than you ever put back...

"We are most disturbed by what we have learned, and ask that you correct it."

"They're really ticked off that the MNR (Ministry of Natural Resources) is cutting fish and wildlife programs," said Reeve Bill Davis.

Davis suggested council pass a resolution opposing any reduction of fish stocking in Dysart. "Our figures have been drastically cut," he said.

"Anglers and Hunters do good work, and I think we should support that one," agreed Councillor Brian Watts.

Deputy-Reeve Lloyd Leadbeater said any cuts to fish stocking would cause problems for the tourism industry.

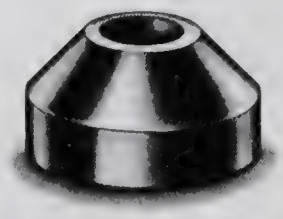
For as little as 23¢, this remarkable device can save 1,983 gallons of hot water a year.



You'd be amazed how small changes, like replacing the washer on a leaky tap can make such a big difference in your home's energy efficiency. Little things, like using dimmer switches with incandescent light bulbs or insulating your hot water pipes all add up. So, why not take a look around your home and see where there's room for small changes?

If you have any questions, or if you'd like more energy saving tips, call your local hydro utility at the number below.

"Country Cuisine with City Flair"

On the road again, with 99 bottles of beer

The Intrepid Cottager

by Craig Nicholson

Talk about ludicrous!

Every Friday night we leave the city like rats fleeing a sinking ship. Sundays, it's lemmings back to the sea. Between, a four to six hour round trip bracketing about 36 fleeting hours. Undeterred by traffic, weather, speed traps and a riot of stuff, kids and dogs, we make the trek - always on guard for that elusive road that will get us there faster. Always on guard for flat tires, empty gas tanks, skunks, closest bathrooms, farm fresh veggies, open chip trucks, detours, road kills and car sick passengers. Always on guard to make it to town before the stores close.

All in the name of fun!

It's usually 15 minutes out that a little voice from the back pipes up, "Mommee-ee, I've gotta go!", which leads to a heated discussion about exactly whose responsibility it was to address this porcelain problem before leaving. After everyone and the family dog has put in two cents worth simultaneously, it usually turns out that everyone took the tyke who resolutely refused to co-operate until now. What incredible control.

30 minutes out is when someone remembers the steaks left again on the counter at home. Another heated discussion, this one a draw. Unless I can get us to town before closing time, it's hot dogs for dinner two weeks in a row. The kids cheer. I can hardly wait for Sunday and the smell of 2 day old meat. The dogs drool.

40 minutes and the inevitable chorus arises from the back: "When are we gonna eat?!?" My tummy lurches and my wallet spasms at the thought of fast food again. But as the name implies, fast is what counts in the race to town. Besides, it's probably as good as two day old steak.

An hour and the gas gauge hovers at "E". Who was supposed to fill up before leaving? Another discussion, less heated, more resigned. This time it was probably me. Where is it written that separate stops have to be made for everything? We need a service centre every mile or so.

90 minutes and auto pilot, a trance induced by too much stress and the urge to throttle someone or thing. An even more pressing urge makes me wish I hadn't raised so much fuss about stopping. It's hard to drive with your legs crossed.

103 minutes. The rain slicks on the windshield like heavy oil. Someone should have replaced those wipers. Why is it that every bad driver in the world has to be on the same road? O.k., o.k., I should have bought new wipers.

A trance-shattering chorus starts up in the rear; this time it's my particular favourite "99 Bottles of Beer on the Wall". But the first number is 999. Is there no mercy? At least they don't seem to be able to sing and NEED anything at the same time. How long is this drive really??

Longer since the guy in front is only doing the speed limit. What does he care if the stores are closed? 950 beer bottles and counting. I could use one myself. Where did he learn how to drive? How come the slow pokes never turn off? The wife just nodded off. So much for share and share alike. Where are the dotted lines when you need them? The radio is all static - I get an arched eyebrow and frown from the spouse, as if a little music or static could even be heard over the beer song. 900. It couldn't be lite beer, that would be too short.

145 minutes, 23 seconds. Time is standing still, except in town. Is it my imagination, or is the chorus fading slightly at 755 beers? Maybe it's lite after all. The spouse is dead to the world. We'll all be if I don't stay awake. 747 now and only a whisper. Definitely lite. It's actually getting quiet. What a frightening sound. I can still make it to town with seconds to spare. No hot dogs for me! I start humming. It's "99 Bottles of Beer".

148 minutes. This stretch is always so black. The final curve: town beacons in a Vegas of dazzling lights. This is going to be tight! Good bye hot dogs, hello .....!!! NOT AGAIN!

Hello hot dogs, the stores are closed already. Except for the trusty brewers retail. How many beers does it take to drown a hot dog? I hot dog it out of town, counting down from 999.

120: two hours. I turn into our lane. It's wonderful to see the cottage still standing. I turn off the car and take a deep breath. And listen. To the sound of nothing, of serenity, of an oasis in the great outdoors. A wet tongue slurps my ear. I hope it's a dog.

Grope through the dark, fumble with keys, open door - ppheww! Who forgot to throw out those hot dogs last weekend? No discussion, it was me.

Fetch and carry. Fetch dogs, carry one kid, two, three. Fetch bags, boxes, shoes, toys, food, water; carry wife. I stand alone while all about me have fallen. Almost two whole days of fun and relaxation ahead. What could possibly go wrong?

Three hours. Car's empty. Kids are tucked in. Wife's tucked in. Everything's tucked away. I'm tuckered out. Can I stay awake long enough to answer my desperate call of nature? Turn on the pump first. Pump? Pump? PUMP!!!

I'll fix it in the morning. Stumble to the old outhouse, flashlight batteries dead, no toilet paper, cobwebs everywhere. Something's moving in there! Gee, the fun's started already. Maybe tomorrow I'll drive to town for steak.

May 16, 29 mm rain, 4.2 pH, from northern Indiana, southern Michigan and Lake Huron.

May 17, 11 mm rain, 4.7 pH, from northern Indiana, southern Michigan and Lake Superior.

Residents welcome new nursing director

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

May 11, Saturday, Marian Fisher came at 10 o'clock instead of four to read to us. We do enjoy her reading and thank her very much. In the afternoon we had two tables of euchre in the small lounge and that gave us a pleasant hour.

Sunday was Mother's Day. Many residents were with their families for the day. Those who were unable to go out were presented with a small corsage, made by the residents. It was pinned on each lady by Janke Thomas. Thank you Janke.

In the evening we had chapel service with Rev. John Burgess and Alice Jones played the organ. Everyone appreciated the service. Thanks Rev. Burgess and Alice.

Evelyn Coleman was here last Monday for Bible Study. It was her final day until the fall. She had intended to have the Bible Study residents to her home, as she did two years ago, but her husband isn't very well at present, to help with the wheel chairs etc., so she made a delicious lunch and brought it to Bible Study. She and her husband served it in the small lounge. We can't thank Evelyn and Floyd enough for all they have done for us.

When we finished in the small lounge we found a Mr. and Mrs. Bradley were singing and playing a guitar in the main lounge. They came from Gravenhurst to entertain us and we enjoyed their music immensely and thank them. We hope they come again.

In the evening, Allan and Ruth Rice came to show the movies. They were "Beavers, Otters and Muskrats" and "One Day at Teton Marsh". They were good and we thank Allan and Ruth very much.

Tuesday afternoon Doris took us for a bus ride with Sylvia and Dick Johnson and Janke to assist. Dick and Sylvia are home from Florida and we are happy to have them with us again. We travelled on the north side of the lakes from the head of Twelve Mile to Ox Narrows and back by Buckslide. Kawartha Dairy was closed so we had ice cream bars. We enjoyed the trip and thank everyone involved.

Our new Nursing Director, Marsha Thomas, has assumed her new position. We welcome Marsha Thomas and hope she will be happy at Hyland Crest.

Thursday Tea Party was provided by the Anglican Church Women of St. Margaret's. They brought a delicious tea and two gentlemen to help serve. Some of the group were members of St. Margaret's choir and they sang and played the piano for us. We certainly enjoyed both the tea and the music and thank them all sincerely, especially the ladies who did the dishes.

In the evening Marg Prentice called Bingo for us. I was absent since my son Terry took me to his home for dinner with he and Norma. Thanks Marg and my family.

As usual, Friday was Happy Hour and the entertainment was by Bill Payne, his daughter Margaret playing the autoharp, Charley Hadley and Doris Robertson. The residents and their friends were ably cared for by our faithful volunteers. Everyone was greatly appreciated.

Women's Institute

The May 15th meeting of Minden Women's Institute was at the Common Room. After the usual opening the Roll Call had 15 members present.

Irene Moore reported sending 14 cards for a variety of occasions and collections for this fund and Pennies for Friendship were taken.

The lunch was arranged for the Fashion Show of June 6 with all members offering goodies and supplies and some coming to help. Programmes are to be planned Wed., June 29th with all officers and executive, at Jean Cox's home at 10 a.m. We are making a donation of $50 to the Fire Department's Jaws of Life Fund.

A drop-in Tea is to be planned by the Executive for a W.I. day at the Common Room in June.

We had a brief quiz on the Handbook and the 4 Tweedsmuir Books were on display. A vote of thanks went to Jean Marsh for her donation of a new electric Tea Kettle.

Members will meet at the Municipal parking lot for rides to the June 19th Luncheon Meeting at 11:30 to go to Gwen Cox's home. All are to bring dishes and cutlery and food. Several plants were sold toward our funds.

A social time followed with lunch and cup of tea served by the Committee. All ladies are welcome to our Pot Luck Meeting on June 19th.

Jeanne Sears, P.R.O.

Competition hot at Black Bear Car Rally

The Black Bear Car Rally opens the "Ontario" performance rally season, as the 1st round of the Ontario Performance Rally Championship is held in conjunction with the Perce Neige Rally in Maniwaki, Quebec in February. It is the shortest of the OPRC events, with five or six stages totalling 75 to 80 kms.

It begins at the Minden Arena and ends a Hart Lodge, 15 km north of Minden on Hwy. #35, but all the stages are located around the junction of Hwys. #35 and #118. The stage roads are narrow and twisty, and numerous blind corners and crests keep the average speeds around 75 kph. Among competitors, crew and spectators, the Bear is better known as the "Black Fly", acknowledging the ravenous attention paid to bare flesh by millions of the little insects.

The competition will be very hot, despite the insects. The reigning OPRC champ, Vojtek Grabowski of Toronto, in his Lakeshore Toyota BFG Celica All-Trac will be returning to Ontario from two national events in Western Canada immediately preceding the Bear. Accompanying him out west, and hopefully defeating him there, will be the Sprongl brothers of Woodbridge in their Bosch Five Star Racing Audi Quattro.

These two are the chief protagonists for the overall OPRC title. The Sprongl missed the winter trip to Quebec, their car not returning from Vancouver auto Show in time. With Grabowski winning the Ontario portion of Perce Neige, he has a 20 point lead in the standings. Only 'did not finishes' in any of the remaining four OPRC events may prevent Grabowski from repeating as champ.

Where the real hot competition happens in the region is the Production class. Here, engine modifications are prohibited, so driver skill and car durability are most critical. The two most popular vehicles are the Toyota Corolla GTS and the Volkswagon GTI. Both have twin cam engines and four-wheel disc brakes, with the Toyota being rear wheel drive (RWD) and the VW being front wheel drive (FWD).

Number one after round one is the international team of Bob Elliott (Vermont) and Terry Epp (Stouffville) in a GTI. Bob is the ad manager for RALLY magazine, an enthusiastic book from the U.S:, while Terry is the CASC Ontario Region Rally Director and '86 National Champion co-driver. In second place, following an excellent third overall at Perce Neige is Richard Sharpe in the Lakeshore Toyoto Bosch Valvoline Corolla GTS. Third place is held by Yoshio Kinoshita in the Dixie Toyota Corolla GTS. Two strong challengers are Mark Krawczyk in a Nissan 200SX, who finished first Production in last year's Tall Pines rally and James Fyn in a VW GTI, who took second Production in Pennsylvania's Taidaghton Trails rally, held May 4th and 5th.

Chamber directors to make plea for funds from members

From The Chamber

by Shawn Hagerman

This has been a busy month as the Chamber regroups under the difficulties caused by County's decision. At a Board meeting May 22, several important issues and strategies were implemented.

June is going to be Membership Month. An effort will be made by directors to contact all members, review any questions about the existing situation and ask for a voluntary, additional membership contribution above your regular dues. Anything you could contribute would be welcome, but if everyone gave $50 it would help secure the second staff and give us some operating room.

Also, if you would like to sponsor an event, (i.e. the circus, or a business after hours), work on a committee or become a board member. Now is the time to come forward. As people in business, the Chamber's ultimate success rests with us. We need your help to continue to make our voice heard. It is also a good time to pay your dues since they must be paid by June 30 to continue your membership. Welcome your director when they call, they are volunteering their time to make our Chamber work.

Curtis Eastmure also has reserved space for our Chamber to attend the important Snowmobile Show in the fall. However, the only way we can go is if enough members participate. It has to be self-liquidating. Also, our booth has been made available to individuals on a fee basis. It is felt this would be a good way to get our booth and brochures out to shows without the Chamber incurring any direct cost. Contact the Chamber office for details on the booth and the Snowmobile Show.

Stand up and be counted on census day, Canada!

June 4 is Census Day. The nations 17th survey since confederation, will collect information about every man, woman and child in Canada.

Conducted once every five years, the upcoming census will update the Citizenship's census database. Providing essential information to support the development of Ontario Public Service policies, programs and services.

The questions on age, sex, marital status, language and household size will be answered by all Canadians, but one in five homes will receive a form with almost 50 questions.

Census forms will be dropped off at each household starting the last week of May. On June 4, they should be filled in and mailed back.

Assistance completing the form is available by contacting the Haliburton County Information Centre at 457-2733.

How to be a Local Hero

Imagine a Canada where people make giving an important part of their lives. Where they plan how much they can give, in time and in money. Where they don't wait to be asked to help. Imagine the rewards of being one of those people. Be a Local Hero.

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Chinese food delicious

For Your Service

Georgina Deeks for Branch 636, Minden

May 10 was our Chinese Dinner & Dance. The food was delicious. Unfortunately, there was a lot of disappointed people who couldn't get tickets. Seeing as this was such a huge success, maybe we can do it again, so watch for announcements.

We would like at this time to thank Hugh MacIntyre and all the volunteers who helped cook, serve, clean-up, etc. Again, without volunteers where would we be?

Speaking of volunteers, bartenders are needed for evenings. Meet other members of your legion while giving a helpful hand, (men or women). No experience necessary, you will be trained. Check at bar for information.

Another Trivia Night is coming up, June 19, at 7:30 p.m. Pack up your wits and come out and have some fun.

Reminder again of our annual yard sale, to be held June 29 (one day only), from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Any articles for the sale will be appreciated. No clothing please.

General Meeting, June 5. Remember this is the last meeting until the fall so let's have a full house. This is the place to be heard, at the meetings.

Wet winter meant high levels

Lake levels were high as 1991 began following the wettest December in some 50 years. By late February, however, the Kawarthas had declined to near their normal winter levels while the Haliburton area reservoir lakes had reached a low of about 35 per cent. This is a typical winter low before melting snow and rain begins to refill them.

A slow, small freshet began and continued until about April 8 when heavy rains arrived. Rain continued heavy such that Peterborough recorded its wettest April in 40 years, Muskoka received 167 mm by the 21st (far in excess of its former all-time April maximum of 131 mm) and throughout the northern Kawarthas/southern Haliburton area rains of 150 mm (about twice normal) occurred.

This resulted in the Burnt River flooding to its highest level since 1928 and shoreline damages. The flood peak moved down through the Kawarthas, Otonabee and Trent River areas where it exceeded most recent years spring peaks.

Three dry weeks preceding this writing (May 16) have now caused most levels and flows to return to near normal early summer values. The navigation season is set to begin May 17 and reservoir stored water is at about 99 per cent of maximum. Lake Simcoe-Couchiching, which had flooded to its highest level since 1960, has also returned to near the proper level after maximum discharges of water for nearly a month at Washago.

Public Notice of a PRESCRIBED BURN

During late May or early June, the Ministry of Natural Resources will be conducting a prescribed burn on three parcels of Crown land in Stanhope Township, totalling 45 hectares. The location is approximately 3 km south of Ox Narrows and 1 km west of Kushog Lake, as shown on the map below. The exact date of the burn will depend on suitable weather conditions and any northern fire-fighting assignments for the Haliburton Fire Centre crews.

If you observe smoke or helicopter activity in the area of this prescribed burn during this period, please do not drive to the site for a closer look. Access to the burn site will be sealed, and the fire will not be visible from the Kushog Lake Road. Curious on-lookers will only block traffic on the Kushog Lake Road and impede the movements of the MNR fire crew. You will be welcome to view the site after the fire has been extinguished.

The purpose of this prescribed burn is to prepare a recent cutover for the planting of 60,000 white pine in the spring of 1992. Prescribed burns like this provide the closest approximation of the wildfire conditions under which white pine regenerates in nature. For more information on this prescribed burn or on other forestry activities in this area, please contact Peter Hynard of the MNR Minden Office at 286-1521. (Please do not call on the day of the burn, as MNR staff will be occupied at the burn site.)

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Luella Bryant would like to thank the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, Rev. Moll, Dr. Heyes, ambulance drivers, UCW of Maple Lake and family and friends for the flowers, food, donations, telephone calls and visits.

I want to express my warmest thanks for the Home Care Office in Haliburton, to the Victoria Order of Nurses, Helen Berry, Sharon Marsh and Audrey Winsley for their help and consideration during my husband's illness. Without their professional and personal care, my family and I would never have been able to give to my husband the care that we wanted him to have. To doctors Karl Hartwick and Gordon Smith, I want to extend my deepest thank you.

St. George's Rectory a town treasure

by Susan Wilson

The manse. The parsonage. The rectory. Whatever it's called, the house where the minister lives holds a special place in the life of the congregation. They own it and are responsible for it and, to the degree that their resources allow and its history warrants, they may take almost as much pride in it as they do in the church building itself.

The rectory of St. George's Anglican Church in Haliburton is one of the historic treasures of the town and, naturally, of the congregation as well. It was built in 1899 in a commanding position on the hill overlooking the lake, a handsome two-storey red-brick house trimmed at the corners in a contrasting, lighter colour of brick. For its time, it must have been one of the finer houses in town, perhaps a reflection of the parishioners' own growing affluence and security as their lives in the back country became more and more established.

Historian Leopolda Dobrzensky thinks it likely that the rectory was built by William Prust, a "busy Anglican" and skilled carpenter who emigrated from England in 1873 with his wife Ellen and their two children. Prust was obviously very involved with the church, serving as Warden for a time, and he was also one of the few builders in Haliburton during those years.

Prust had built several brick houses in the village and the rectory resembles in style his own two-storey house and store, called Prust Hall, which stood at the crossroads in the town centre. Prust Hall was large enough that Prust loaned it to the municipality when the town offices burned down in 1895. (The building is now occupied by Black's Hardware; the upper floor was inexplicably removed some time ago.)

The Rev. M. J. Goodheart was the first minister to live in the rectory and remained there from 1899 until he left the village in 1901. Since then, a number of incumbents have lived in the house and, with each one, the house has undergone changes that reflect their tastes and varying needs. But, because the house has enjoyed a continuity of ownership through these changes of residents, and because decisions are made not by the residents according to their choice, but by a church committee according to their will and their budgets, change has happened gradually. As a result, many of the original features of the house remain intact between the large front porch put up in the 1920s and the frame addition put on at the back during the First World War. (The double garage behind that was added only abut 15 years ago.)

For its time, the rectory must have been one of the finer houses in town, perhaps a reflection of the parishioners' own growing affluence as their lives in the back country became more established.

In 1982, John and Florajean Phillips moved into the St. George's rectory with their two children, Jenny and John William. After nine years, they are well versed in the history of the house. "The original part of the house," says John, "is the brick part which now includes the front hallway and stairs with the living room and dining room to one side and my study to the other. In those days, back in the 1920s, the kitchen was where half the dining room is now. The dining room was probably in the present living room and the study might have been the parlour. Upstairs, there were three bedrooms."

To the practiced eye, there are a number of signs of authentic vintage. The doors themselves are of solid wood and the trim around them is finished off with routered cornerblocks disguising the butt joints. The floors in the living and dining rooms are of wood, sanded and varnished to a lovely shine. The bannister and newel posts of the dignified stair railing are also made from finely polished unpainted wood.

The addition at the back was put on to make living quarters for a housekeeper and later, during Frank Ford's time as minister, the attic space above the first floor was made into more bedrooms to accommodate his children. Later on, a two-car garage was added behind the addition.

When the Phillips moved in, though, the house was not without its problems. Like the bats living in the walls. Like the old knob-and-tube wiring that made the place a potential firetrap. And, latterly, a leaky roof. Thanks to the generosity of the property committee, all these problems have been addressed. The wiring was replaced in 1983 and insulation was blown into the walls, forcing the bats to find another home. Some time before the Phillips arrived ("three guys before us") the heating system had been changed from wood to oil.

In 1987, the floors in the kitchen and the addition were replaced, including the supports and the kitchen was redone. Two years ago, the bathroom was modernized and last year the roof was repaired.

"When they were working on the kitchen," recalls Florajean, "they decided to drop the ceiling and it ws a real challenge to make it level. The house has settled over the years, of course, and there's a four-inch drop from the centre of the ceiling to the outside wall. The house is structurally sound, but it does lean."

When the Phillips arrived, the front porch was open to the elements. "The snow was blowing in when we first saw the house in January 1982," says John. "So that May, when we moved in, Harley Fader helped me screened it in. It makes a nice addition to the living space of the house." The porch can be reached both from the main front door and via a set of French doors in the study. Upstairs there was a balcony off the master bedroom accessible only through a window; so the Phillips took that out and put in a door.

The Phillips are the sort of family who like the congregation to feel that the rectory is an integral part of the church. Back at the beginning, they had no choice, with one of the five second-floor bedrooms serving as the church secretary's office. She moved over to the church only in 1987 when the addition there was completed. But the principle remains. The Phillips hold services on the front lawn and have open houses for parishioners. Some people remark during these events that they have never before been in the minister's house.

"A rectory is a godsend for a parish," John Phillips says. "It cuts their costs because,

John and Florajean Phillips, and their children Jenny and John William, and their dog Princess, have been living in the 92-year-old Anglican rectory since they came to the parish in 1982. The exterior brick wall provides an historic back-drop to the screened-in porch. The French doors at the right lead into John's study.

Jenny plays the piano at one end of the dining room which originally housed the kitchen when the house was built in 1899. The original wood floors have been refinished to a fine glow.

Renovation possible only through co-operation of church committee since housing is included, they don't have to pay as large a salary. They retain the equity in the building and consequently it's in their interests to keep it up. The committee is very good about putting work and money into it and about understanding that it is our home."

"The committee has been very liberal in accommodating our tastes," continues Florajean. "I love orange, for instance. So they agreed to putting in an orange countertop in the kitchen and painting the wall between the counter and cupboards orange too. We've suggested to them that they consider a policy of doing a room a year so that they never get too far behind."

All in all, the Phillips are not displeased with their life as ecclesiastical tenants. "There are pluses and minuses to all things," they say. "The downside for us is that we don't have the equity of owning our own house. But church pensions have improved over the years. So the financial consequences for retiring ministers aren't as dire as they once were.

"But home is what you make it. We find it an advantage to be next door to the church. We have a beautiful view and a very convenient location. And it really is a nice old house."

This is the third in a series of articles about interesting homes in Haliburton County.

The picture at the left shows the rectory in the days before the front porch was added, contrasting with a contemporary photograph below. Sitting on the crest of the hill overlooking the lake, the house offers a commanding view of the countryside.

From the Little Red School House

At school in the 1920s

In 1978, the Federation of Women Teachers of Ontario celebrated its Diamond Jubilee. In recognition of the occasion, teachers whose experience dated back to the era of the one-room school house were asked to provide their reminscences of those early days.

Copies of these stories came into the hands of Stan and Marion Hill who kindly loaned them to The Times. This week , Marjorie Madill remembers her first post near Gooderham.

by Marjorie Madill

Looking back to my life half-a-century ago does not seem so strange. The strangeness I experienced came with my arrival in the village of Gooderham from my hometown, Bobcaygeon.

Like many another teenager, I had been very anxious to get away and begin a life of my own. I knew from young girlhood that I wanted to be a teacher and, at 17, I was able to persuade my parents to let me go to North Bay Normal School (as Teachers' College was called then). Here you could receive a government grant and, on completion of your year's work, you agreed to teach in the northern districts for two years.

Positions didn't seem too plentiful and it wasn't until late August 1926 that I received a request to go to teach at the Bear Lake School in the Township of Glamorgan. The School Inspector of the time, Mr. Pentland, had made the arrangements and off I went. It took eight hours, from 6 a.m. to 4 p.m., to make the journey via the I. B. & O. Railroad [Irondale, Bancroft, and Ottawa].

That's when the strangeness started: there was no one in Gooderham to meet me! I had supposed the Madills, who boarded the teacher, would be at the station to meet me. But they knew knothing of my coming—nor did the teacher then in charge of the school. What a situation to step into!

Fortunately, I met the teacher of the Gooderham school, Miss Border, at the station and she contacted a young man to drive me the six miles out to the Madills where I had to do some explaining! Evidently, the circular from the Department of Education to the effect that Third Class certificates were no longer satisfactory qualifications had arrived. But neither the family nor the teacher had supposed that this new regulation would be enforced in this rather isolated area.

I must mention here that the school was closed for the worst winter months, January and February, and then kept open for the months of July and August. So classes were in session when I arrived. It must have been a great disappointment to the teacher and it was certainly a dreadful embarrassment to me. I still find it difficult to understand why the teacher hadn't been informed personally. Somehow, there must have been a slip-up in the inspector's office.

The population of the area had dropped about this time and two schools, S. S. #6 Glamorgan and S. S. #5 Monmouth, had been amalgamated. The existing schools were about four miles apart; so a halfway house had to be found. This proved to be an Anglican church. So the residents did what they had to do—prepare the church for a classroom—and, I would suppose, with very little money or desire to have the school there.

The building was of frame construction, unlined inside, the great high pitch of the roof with no ceiling or finish. In September this was no problem. But when it came to cold November and December, and later March and April, the heat went out faster than it was manufactured in the wood stove which was none too big and had a long string of pipes. It really was extremely cold.

To add to the discomfort, the chancel of the church was supposed to have been closed off with folding doors, but this was never done and the curtains which hung there used to blow around in the drafts. But I was young, anxious to succeed, and more than anxious to please.

The pews had been removed from one side of the church and school desks installed. These were pine, homemade, and sat two to a desk. When an influx of pupils occurred, these new children had to sit in the church pews and make do with their knees as desks. Poor youngsters, their legs wouldn't reach the floor and the discomfort must have been terrible. Having no experience, we simply put up with this injustice. I scarcely think anyone realized the cruelty. We have come a long way. No one now would be so subdued they'd be afraid to speak out. I was just too submissive; what I was handed out, I just accepted.

There were also just two rather small, cloth-covered, very rough blackboards. No library. For drinking facilities, a zinc pail and a dipper. And, of course, the inevitable outhouse.

The teacher was very kind to me and I am forever grateful, for the responsibilities now thrust upon me almost overwhelmed me. She explained her routines and gave me great encouragement. I pay tribute to her skills, for every child read quite well and the basic skills in mathematics were established. Most pupils had mastered the niceties of manipulating our number system, working out stupendous samples in addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division. Even the seven-year-old was participating adequately. I still marvel at it.

To get to school, of course, you had to walk, making your own paths in winter. There were no ploughed roads and people had wood roads which didn't follow the summer roads. Sometimes you were wading in snow drifts over your knees. Once, when the snow was piled particularly high, the young man of the house where I boarded decided to take me to school with the horse and cutter. The poor horse plunged and the cutter tipped down first on one side, then on the other. We hung on and jumped from side to side to keep the cutter upright.

Of my own accomplishments as a teacher, I remember very little. I think I just worked away, trying my best. I know we prepared the usual Christmas concert and had a very good time at it.

Collecting your salary was something else again. I would walk the four miles to the house where the Secretary of the Committee lived, be told he was out in the field, walk out to see him, ask for the money, and be told he guessed so if the bank wasn't gone broke. As much as three months would go by before I would feel like making the trip again.

There were some very good things about the one-room school, but I'm convinced the bigger village schools give more opportunities. Now very few teachers begin their careers as sole master of the school they work in, with no help available from experienced staff and transportation almost nil. Perhaps we wouldn't have wanted help, preferring to choose our own way. I just don't know. But looking back at it from this distance, I'm sure it would have been advantageous.

A kitchen full of cookbooks

by Susan Wilson

In Laura Kirkwood's kitchen there are dozens of cookbooks, new and old. The latter category includes 15 that belonged to her mother, Lillian Margaret Letitia Mears Shafe. They come in all shapes and sizes and from a number of sources. There are soft-cover books put out by the manufacturers of baking products: chocolate, yeast, evaporated milk, two brands of baking powder. One book comes from a chain of drug stores. The Moffatt Cook Book was put out by the Moffat Stove Company. There are several from church groups.

There are also hard-cover books. The Presidential Cook Book "adapted from the White House Cook Book" was published in 1896 and features photographic portraits of Edith Carson Roosevelt, wife of President Teddy Roosevelt, and Ida Saxton McKinley, wife of Vice President William McKinley.

Prize among the collection is a one-shilling "new, enlarged" edition of Mrs. Beeton's Cookery Book published in England. There is no date of publication in the book, but it is easily more than a century old. Like many cookbooks of the time, it includes advertisements for related products, in this case British staples such as Worcestershire Sauce and Crosse & Blackwell.

Cookbooks at the turn of the century also included a lot of useful information and motherly advice to help the young woman starting out in the establishment of her own household: suggestions for managing staff, how tables should be laid for various meals, menu outlines, and so on. Mrs. Beeton opens with a chapter entitled "The Housekeeper". For some reason, she begins with an almost philosophical discourse on the elusive nature of fame and continues (with, perhaps, an excess of commas):

"Specially does this apply to women, who, though, perhaps, less gifted with brain power than the sterner sex, have yet a greater versatility of talent, and who, if they seek it, can always find a vocation."

One opines that Mrs. Beeton was not a suffragette.

Lillian Margaret Letitia Mears was the cook in a large upper-crust household in London, England—a real-life "Upstairs, Downstairs" with scullery maids and parlour maids and ladies' maids and butlers and all. In 1908, when she was 28, she came to Canada to join her fiance, Charles Westrop Shafe, who had come outshortly before.

(Shafe had been an artificial florist prior to emigrating, making silk and velvet flowers for those large Victorian hats. Making artificial flowers was an official trade in those days, requiring formal apprenticeship.)

"My parents were married in St. Paul's Anglican Church in Lindsay," Laura says, "where my father was working on a farm. That was a terrible experience for him after coming from London, one of the world's leading urban centres. So after about a year, they moved to Little Britain where he worked for Dr. Hall. He drove the doctor around when he went on his calls and looked after Mrs. Hall's garden. I guess you could say he was a general handyman."

Laura Shafe and her older sister Violet Jane were born near Little Britain. Laura came to Minden in 1932 to teach at the Bethel School, across the road from the Bethel Church, and boarded at the Sisson farm about a mile away. "One day I was walking home from school and, as I came across Mitchell's Bridge, a group of men was blasting a rock cut on the road. As I came by, they had just finished laying the dynamite and asked if I wanted the honour of lighting the fuse. So I did. That was the only time I ever blew anything up!"

In 1934, Laura Shafe married Dick Kirkwood and moved into Minden House on the river in town. Sometime thereafter, she was the last person to walk across the bridge where the Orillia Water Light and Power dam is now.

"In those days," Laura recalls, "the road went from Minden up Highway 121 a short ways, then across the river at the falls where the mills had stood and continued along what is now Horseshoe Lake Road One. One day, I walked up that way to visit a friend who lived on the far side of the river. So I crossed the bridge as usual. When I came back, I discovered that they had removed all the planking and only the large timber stringers were left. There was nothing to do but walk across them and trying not to look down at the rushing water below. There was no other way to get across."

But back to the kitchen. With so many of her mother's cookbooks at hand, it's hard to make a choice. Laura finally settled on The Mixing Bowl put together by the Women's Association of the United Church in Little Britain in 1938. (The Shafes had become members of the congregation on moving to Little Britain because there was no Anglican Church there.) The book is subtitled:

A Guide to Good Cooking written by
The Housewives of Little Britain whose assistance is hereby Gratefully Acknowledged and to whom
This Book is Respectfully Dedicated.

It includes a number of interesting features including a section on "Diet for Diabetics" and a pudding recipe from Agnes MacPhail, the first woman elected to Parliament in Canada; her recipe was submitted by a Mrs. E. Marks.

MacPhail was a member of the Canadian Commonwealth Federation (CCF), predecessor of the NDP, and she was part of the strong Methodist Western base of that party. So it is not suprising to find something from her in a cookbook from the United Church which was formed by the union of the Methodist and Presbyterian congregations across the country.

Agnes MacPhail's Pudding

1 cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2-cup white sugar
1/2-cup raisins or dates
milk for a stiff batter
salt

Put into a buttered dish and pour over it a syrup of:

1 tsp. butter
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup hot water
1 cup brown sugar
Bake half an hour.

Every Christmas, Laura's mother always made the English Plum Pudding she contributed to The Mixing Bowl. "She always made two big bowls of plum pudding every year," Laura recalls. "We'd have one of them at Christmas and she'd save the other one for Easter. In those days, of course, there were no fresh fruits available during the winter, only preserves. So a fruit-laden pudding like this was a special treat. We only had oranges at Christmas time too. There'd always be an orange in the toe of your stocking—and a book on top to keep you quiet!"

When Laura married, she too made her mother's plum pudding at Christmas, but in recent years she has moved away from it. "It's very rich," she says. "So now I make a carrot cake instead that isn't quite so heavy."

Dandelion Wine

Scattered through the pages of Lillian Mears Schafe's cookbooks are odd bits of paper with recipes written on them. "Mother would copy recipes out of the paper or wherever and insert them in her cookbooks," Laura says. "Sometimes what's on the other side of the piece of paper is as interesting as the recipe. There's one on the back of a grocery bill that shows '2 tall tins of salmon, 25 cents'. There's another for Dandelion Wine on a form from the Grand Trunk Railway. It looks like something the conductor would use for recording cash sales of fares to people on the train who hadn't bought tickets. I'm still not sure this recipe isn't a joke, though."

Here it is, original spelling and all. (This writer could have used a few of Mrs. Beeton's commas.)

"Be sure and gather the Dandilions furst then fill up the pot with water then look at them then put them on the fire and boil them then take them off and strain them then take the water they were boiled in and smell it but don't drink it pute it on the fire again and pute in about 50 cents worth of brown sugar and two lemons cut up and boil a few minutes take off and let almost cool and then pute in a slice of toasted bread and one yeast cube and let stand overnight then strain into bottle and set in the sun till they stop foaming then cork and set away in a cool place and don't drink for 3 years."

Recipes call for old-fashioned things like cooking syrup and pudding cloths

English Plum Pudding

1 lb. currants
1 lb. seedless raisins
1 lb. seeded raisins
1 cup chopped dates
1 lb. flour
1/2-lb. chopped suet
2 cups bread crumbs
5 eggs, well beaten
1/4-lb. maraschino cherries
1 tbsp. mixed party spice
1/2-cup cooking syrup
2 cups brown sugar
1/2-lb. chopped nut meats
2 tsps. vanilla
1/4-lb. mixed peel
juice of two lemons or 1/4-cup fruit juice
scant tsp. baking soda dissolved in a little water

Wash currants, dates, and raisins, and dry thoroughly. (Fruits should be mixed with half the flour.) Mix all dry ingredients together. Add beaten eggs. Then add fruit-and-flour mixture and fruit pieces and flavourings. Mix all very thoroughly. Leave overnight. In the morning, pack firmly into buttered bowls or floured pudding cloths, leaving room for expansion. Cover bowls with waxed paper and cover with floured cloth tied firmly. Cook for six hours in boiling water, keeping plenty of water in pan, to within one inch of top of bowls.

Laura suggests that six hours are necessary only if the entire recipe is cooked in one bowl. If you divide it into two bowls, it will need about four hours. "Be sure to keep it at a simmer," she advises. "If it boils too hard, the water just boils away."

And what is cooking syrup and what are pudding cloths? "Cooking syrup was something like corn syrup. It's actually a bit darker, between corn syrup and molasses, as opposed to table syrup which was very clear. It used to come in a big barrel.

"A pudding cloth is any clean, white, closely woven piece of cloth that won't let the pudding through, like a pillow case; not something open like cheesecloth, though."

But like Laura, not many people are going to go back to the traditional plum pudding. So she offers as a final choice a more practical recipe from The Mixing Bowl, Mrs. Conover's Ginger Cookies

Mrs. Conover's Ginger Cookies

1 cup butter or drippings
1 cup white sugar
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup molasses
4 cups flour
2 eggs
4 tsps. ginger
1 tsp. [baking] soda
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. salt, if lard is used
Mix well, set in a cool place for a couple of hours, flour hands, make into little balls, and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees]. For how long? "Fifteen minutes would be lots. You need to be very careful with ginger cookies."

This is the third in a series of articles about pioneer recipes still being used by residents of Haliburton County.

Laura Kirkwood has well over a dozen cookbooks that belonged to her mother. The oldest of them, Mrs. Beeton's Cookery Book, is at least a century old. The one she holds, The Mixing Bowl, dates from 1938 and was put together by the women of the United Church in Little Britain. The recipes she offers here were taken from The Mixing Bowl.

A new spirit of giving

SPOT THE SHOT

Here we go! Here we go! The first winner of the new season is about to be announced. It looks as if we are going to have an interesting year once again, because even though the majority of respondents correctly identified the location of shot number one, there were quite a few who placed the scene shown anywhere but in West Guilford. That tells us it could prove to be a challenging year for SPOT THE SHOT watchers. West Guilford it was, from the bridge next to the community centre. The camera is facing east toward Pine Lake and, as a number of sharpies pointed out, the idyllic piece of Highlands on the point, is the Sisson property. The winner of contest number one is Mrs. M. Botting of Haliburton. We suspect she has been over this bridge many times. Congratulations to her and $25 in the coin of the realm, or a reasonable facsimile thereof is on its way along with our good wishes. You too can retire early and purchase a condo in Florida on your SPOT THE SHOT winnings. All you have to do is identify the location of this picture.

We could hear the howls of derrision when SPOT THE SHOT Number 2 hit the streets. A morceau de gateau, we heard them say, not giving the photo a second glance. Well this one should give you a good strong shot of jamais vu. Tell us where this shot was taken and the body of water shown in the photo and you too could be rich and famous. Send your guess, along with your name, address and phone number to the address below. Don't forget, the deadline for this contest is June 4, with the winner to be announced in the June 10 edition of THIS WEEK IN THE HIGHLANDS. Send you entries to: SPOT THE SHOT, Contest # 3, c/o The Times, Box 97, Minden, Ontario, K0M 2K0; or drop it off at The Times office, Main Street, Minden (there is a slot in the door for late night entries); or FAX it to us at (705) 286-4768.
